

Associations and Organizations associated with the Motor Industry

1. Tertiary Education Commission (TEC)
2. Motor Trade Association (MTA)
3. Private Training Providers (PTE)
4. Business NZ
5. Engineering, Printing and Manufacturing Union (EPMU)
6. Society of automotive Engineers Australasia (SAE)
7. Motor Industry Association (MIA)
8. Collision Repair Association (CRA)
9. Motor Industry Training Organisation (MITO)
10. New Zealand Qualifications Authority (NZQA)
11. Polytechnics

Match the organization with the description

	Manages automotive apprenticeships
	Provides a Record of Achievement which shows the standards and qualifications the learner has achieved
	Focuses on vehicle safety and environmental issues of new vehicles, made up from vehicle importers and distributors
	Open to all employers, not just automotive and works to improve the conditions employers work in
	Members made up from motor body repairs such as automotive refinishing, motor trimming, radiator repair and chassis straightening
	Allocates funding to all tertiary training providers including universities, PTES and polytechnics
	Made up of motor industry businesses, to help members businesses and to protect the customers. Can act as a mediator if the customer has a dispute with one of its members
	A small training provider which offers specific industry courses
	Represents the employees to achieve improved wages and conditions
	A large training provider which offer courses across a wide range of areas
	Worldwide organisation that provides automotive training and technical updates to its members